

Does the Health Care Sector increase their Research and Development spending every year?

Research and Development in the Health Care sector have spent an average of $42,097.41 in the last four years.

Each year, the spending goes up for Research and Development little by little. Between Year 1 and Year 2, the spending went up by $64.33. Between Year 2 and Year 3, the spending went up by $256.87. Between Year 3 and Year 4, the spending went up by $365.51. The standard deviation is 311.69 for the entire chart. The range for spending For R&D is $686.71. The median spending is $42,097.71.